TO THE READERS OF THE VIEW OF THE TAXES, FUNDS, and PUBLICK REVENUES of England, from 1702 to 1712.

Printed in the Year 1712.

BECAUSE the Publick ſeem to be very little acquainted with the true State of the Debts and Incumbrances this War has left upon us; that Paper is intended to let every Man into a fair View of that Matter.

One half of it as a Foundation, contains the ſeveral Sums voted by Parliament during her preſent Majeſty's Reign. The Eſtabliſhment of the Civil Liſt, and the Equivalent to the Scots excepted. The ſeveral Years Proviſions are tranſcrib'd from the printed Votes, except in one Inſtance in the Year 1710, where thoſe Prints were erroneous in the Caſe of 20,200 l. printed inſtead of 220,000 l. voted, for Augmentation Troops in Flanders. This being an indiſputable Authority, we may fairly build upon it, and proceed to ſhew, that altho' ſix Millions per Annum have been voted, yet by the Tenor of thoſe Votes, there are divers Articles which muſt have been provided for altho' no War had been, viz. Home Guards and Garriſons, the Ordinary of the Navy, the Storehouſe and Wharf at Portſmouth, the Intereſt of unſatisfied old Army Debentures and Exchequer Bills, &c. which Articles amount, as is there ſhewn, to above five Millions. Wherefore in ſeeking an Eſtimate of the Expence of the War, that Sum muſt be deducted. This therefore being taken out, and the Debts contracted being added, gives the true Sum of the Expence of the War, which then appears to be upon an Average one Year with another, of 1,151,377 l. This may, 'tis true, be a great Sum, and what may be consider'd as burthensome upon the Nation; but it ought to be remember'd, that the War has been always confess'd to be both just and necessary. Both Whig and Tory have agreed, that the Nation cannot be secur'd from arbitrary Power, nor the Church maintain'd in its true Constitution, but by the Protestant Succession of the Crown establish'd by Law; and all the merchandizing Part of the Nation concur in Opinion, that our Trade will be precarious and unprofitable whenever the Government of Spain and France be in the Hand of one Prince. And therefore, as the War was begun to secure us upon those two Points, let the Charge of it be what it will, it must be born with Patience till that be gain'd.

But as nothing is either great or small but in Comparison with something else, so five Millions, as big a Sum as it is, is but a fourth Part of twenty Millions, which it hath cost our Enemy every Year. Neither can five Millions be thought a great Sum for England to expend, if Holland have laid out the same. It must therefore be enquir'd whether that Assertion in the second Part of the Answer to the Conduct of the Allies, Page 60. be true, that the annual Charge of the Dutch to the War is 48,167,208 Gilders, which Book has been publish'd near a Twelvemonth without the least Contradiction, even altho' all this while the greatest Industry has been us'd to discredit and criminate the Dutch. This Silence gives good Reason to believe it, and then it must be confess'd, that they have been at much greater Charge in Proportion than we; because no Man of Judgment will allow that the Dominions of the States is equal to the Dominions of England by at least a Moiety, whether we consider Extent of Country, Produce of Land, Manufactures, or any Sort of Wealth, out of which Taxes may be paid. It then follows, that Holland expending four Millions and half Sterling, which the Sum I mention'd amounts to, must oppress their Subjects in raising it, as much as we should by raising 9 Millions. And at the same time it must be remember'd that they had an old Debt upon them, the Effect of the War in 1672, so large, that the Province of Holland only pays eighty Tun of Gold, which is near 800,000 l. Sterling per Annum Interest.

To prevent an Objection in that Account, That the Debts being reckoned at no more than 2,575,972 l. is erroneous; there is added under-written an Account of our Debts as provided for by Parliament; wherein that to the Navy is stated according to the Sheet printed near two Years since, which having stood all this while uncontradicted, may be supposed to be true. The three Articles, Part of Ways and Means, do not need Explanation, if it be consider'd that the Sum Total is what the Parliament voted, not what they granted, and as those three Articles are Part of the Grants, they are included in the Votes.

On

On the next Page are ſeen, 1. The durable annual Payments upon the Nation, and 2. The publick Revenues at the Time of the Union. The latter is tranſcrib'd from the printed Report of the Commiſſioners for the Union; and the former from the ſame Report ſo far as to that Time, and the reſt is ſupply'd from the Acts of Parliament ſince paſſed. This giving us a full View of the Whole, the Argument ariſing from it is very plain, namely, 1. That by paying the Debt to the Bank for the firſt Iſſue of Exchequer Bills which they ſunk, and receive the Houſe or Window Tax for Intereſt till redeem'd; and by paying off the South Sea Debt; the annual Payments will be diminiſh'd 682,781 l. And if it be aſk'd why we mention thoſe to be paid off rather than others, 'tis anſwered; that the Window Tax being eſteem'd by the common People a Grievance, 'twould be gracious to remove it: And that the Poſſeſſors of the South Sea Debt ſeem to be deſirous of their Money. At leaſt, if ſuch a Proſpect were given, that Stock would riſe in Value. It further appears, 2. by the ſame Accompts, that the annual Payments will be farther diminiſhed by the Expiration of the Lotteries within XXXII Years, 873,676 l. And it muſt be alſo remark'd, that whereas 240,000 l. is paid for Intereſt of Exchequer Bills, and 43,000 l. for making them Specie, the Fund aſſign'd for thoſe Payments is ſo much more than will ſatisfy them, that 'tis computed, there will be a Reſidue of 200,000 l. per Annum, towards the Diſcharge of the Principal, which is accordingly enacted. And as that Fund takes place in 1714, it is computed, that 14 Years from that Time will pay it off, and thereby the annual Payments will be farther diminiſhed 285,000 l. which leaves in all but 912,488 l. per Annum, beſides the Civil Liſt, Home Guards and Navy: In all 2,982,488 l. which is leſs than was paid to the Crown before the time of the Revolution.

One further Remark is deduc'd from the Whole, which 'tis hop'd the Publick will take in good part; namely, That the Royal Revenue before the Revolution amounted to about 2,200,000 l. which had annexed to it no other Expences than thoſe three Branches which are now provided for by the Sum of 1,170,000 l. All other neceſſary Expences upon the Nation being to be provided for over and above. For altho' it may be ſaid, that the 400,000 l. per Annum added in King James's Time was but temporary, yet it's more than probable that if his Government had continued, that too would have been added to the reſt for Life; and ſuch an Example would have been a Plea for his Succeſſors: and therefore it is no unreaſonable Eſtimate to ſtate the Royal Revenue at 2,200,000 l. even altho' none of theſe Wars had happen'd. Whence it follows, that the Difference between 1,170,000 l. and 2,200,000 l. is ſo much ſav'd per Annum. And as that Saving may with great Equity be made perpetual; it may be truly ſaid, that Poſterity will receive in Length of Time as much as this Age has paid.

To the Civil Liſt	700,000
To Guards and Garriſons	350,000
To the Ordinary of the Navy	120,000
	1,170,000

Note, The Revenue granted to King Charles II. for the ſame Purpoſes, amounts to 1,800,000

To which were added by Statute 1 Jac. II. c. 3. Impoſition on Wine and Vinegar. 1 Jac. II. c. 4. Impoſition on Tobacco and Sugar. 1 Jac. II. c. 5. Impoſition on French Linens, Calicoes, wrought Silks and Brandy, which yield at leaſt per Annum 400,000

Total of the Royal Revenue at the Revolution, which in all Probability would have been continued altho' theſe Wars had not been 2,200,000

Which being 1,030,000 l. more than is now acknowledg'd ſufficient for thoſe Uſes, ſo much muſt be conſider'd as a Saving.

And it may be remember'd, that the Continuation of this Saving will refund to Poſterity all that this Age has paid; for that Saving will endure in all Times of Peace, ſince we cannot doubt that the preſent Treaty will terminate in ſuch a Peace, as will not need an Expence to maintain it.
